Rabbi's Corner -- We Are What We Remember

Summer is a time when we make memories. From camp to family trips to lazy days with friends, we have experiences we long remember. Following is an article I wrote for a national blog about the way we become what we remember.

I have a tendency to rewrite history. For example, my wife Ari and I will talk about a family trip with our two kids, and I'll say what a wonderful time we had and how fantastic the kids were.

With an incredulous look, she'll ask me if I remember when Tam (our three-year old) woke up five times during the night, or if I've forgotten when Hannah (our five-year-old daughter) refused for half an hour to get out of the swimming pool. "Really?" I'll reply, "I don't remember that part."

Solel

Some might call this naiveté. I prefer to think of it as a way of making the most of the power of memory. We are what we remember. Memory is always selective. Some of the process of remembering is unconscious. Certain events stick out regardless whether we want them to or not. Yet, we hold a great deal of power in determining what our memories mean.

So long as we do not distort what happened, we can reframe our memories in a positive way. How do we do this?

1. Talk about the positive. In Jewish tradition we hold an annual meal called the Passover seder. Eating from a variety of symbolic foods, we tell the story of the Exodus from slavery in Egypt. In doing so, we could choose to remember all the bitterness and horrors of slavery. It was four hundred years of oppression.

Cantor Glikin's Desk-- So, How Was Camp?

Since coming back from serving on faculty of Union for Reform Judaism's OSRUI (Olin Sang Ruby Union Institute) a couple of days ago, I have been bombarded with one question: "How was camp?" It is close to impossible to describe the experience of camp with all of its energy and intensity, but I am going to attempt it anyway. So, here it goes.

I'm going to start off by saying that spending two weeks on the faculty of OSRUI was akin to receiving a booster shot in Judaism. It is simply invigorating to be around campers and counselors who are excited to be Jewish and to do Jewish. Imagine 7th-9th graders volunteering to read Torah and lead prayer services. Imagine campers excited to learn about Israel and study Hebrew. Imagine rules and regulations of living in camp guided by Jewish ethics and communicated in a language that is undeniably Jewish because it is drawn from our rich textual tradition. Anyone concerned about Jewish continuity would feel relieved after spending even a day at a Jewish camp, where Judaism is not only talked about, but is also lived out as a vibrant experience. Anyone lucky enough to participate in this experience will be forever transformed and will never think about their Judaism in the same way again.

Camp is not only for the campers. OSRUI, same as other camps I imagine, serves as a leadership development ground for young adults. It is a place where young adults are granted authority and are given responsibility. It is inspiring to see these young adults rise to the occasion and exercise leadership in mature ways, impacting their lives and the lives of the campers, who look up to their counselors, specialists, and unit heads.

What is unique about OSRUI is that these young adults are developing not only their leadership skills, but also their Jewish leadership skills. Counselors are involved in leading prayers, in teaching Hebrew and Jewish subjects, in celebrating Shabbat with the campers. These counselors deepen their own Jewish knowledge and learn what it is to serve as Jewish role-models, while the campers benefit from seeing their counselors, not too far in age from themselves, living and learning Judaism.

As a member of the faculty, I was one of two adults attached to my unit. That there are adults available to the campers and counselors is beneficial on countless levels. I was able to offer guidance and counseling to staff and campers at various times throughout the two weeks as the intensity of overnight camp mounted. What is especially unique about OSRUI, however, is that the adults at camp are cantors, rabbis, and Jewish educators. Psychologists and inclusion specialists are on staff and available to the campers, but the clergy and Jewish educators are able to provide the necessary guidance from a Jewish perspective, contributing to the overall depth of the Jewish experience for the campers and staff.

"So, how was camp?" Camp was really amazing and enriching. I felt that I made a real difference in the lives of the campers and staff whom I encountered. I learned a lot from the campers, staff, and fellow faculty members. Most importantly, I got to live on Jewish time in a community of Jewish learners. Few things in the world can be more enriching!

- Cantor Vicky Glikin

From Our President --

I have been thinking about Alexis de' Tocqueville's visit to the United States, beginning in 1831 and stretching over two years. It affirms the impulse that helps to define Congregation Solel.

I know that many of you have encountered his two volumes entitled Democracy in America. A hallmark of public discourse into the twenty-first century, they remain an enduring staple of college classrooms as well as adult reading groups. If you will, please contemplate for a moment these frequently cited words of Tocqueville: "Americans of all ages, all conditions, and all dispositions constantly form associations."

Our synagogue's history reflects as much. The women and men who gathered together in 1955 assembled with a well-focused purpose. Mostly newcomers to the North Shore, they found themselves very much concerned about the Jewish education of their children. So they organized a loosely formed religious school well before they duly incorporated our synagogue. Soon thereafter the same folks came together as a discussion group examining pertinent Jewish topics, not unlike today's spirited lunch-hour sessions. It took the better part of two years before one thing led to another, culminating in the formal establishment of Congregation Solel in 1957. And several more years until they acquired a wooded land parcel on Clavey Road to construct our inspiring synagogue which they officially dedicated in the spring of 1964.

So the past is prologue. Frequently I hear from congregants, via an email or the telephone, wishing to discuss new initiatives for Congregation Solel. July provided some notable instances. Cynthia Plouche, our Vice President for Social Justice, reported on the upcoming nonpartisan town hall meeting on foreign policy with Congressman Brad Schneider. Anne Kleinerman and Sue Ulman spontaneously stepped forward to lead a food drive for the depleted Deerfield Food Pantry. Barb Kessler previewed our forthcoming scholar-inresidence program with Rabbi Emeritus Dov Taylor. Marc Friedman, our Vice President for Worship, touched base about planning for the High Holidays in our much-changed sanctuary. Linsey Cohen and Marcia Denberg, enterprising Co-Chairs of our Membership Committee, filled me in on the wonderful events they have planned by taking advantage of social media. Meta Levin and Sharon Stein invited me to discuss how our congregation might involve itself with social justice initiatives within Lake County. Likewise, I heard from Holly Krakow, our Vice President for Community, about preparations for the annual Solel barbeque on August 23rd that Scott Schwartz will chair. (This multi-generational event drew 225 congregants in 2012). Julie Schaeffer, Vice President for the Religious School, helped me comprehend some key procedures and practices. Carol Greene, looking ahead to the spring of 2014, raised a question about the date of our beloved "One Book/One Solel." Betsy Lassar and Ross Erlebacher reported on the advanced planning for Congregation Solel's Rededication scheduled for March 21-23, 2014. Wendy Rhodes updated me on setting the groundwork for another Kol Zimrah concert in our sanctuary next May. I discussed with Geoff Prass, our Director of the Religious School, our shared passion for promoting the benefits of the Jewish summer camp experience. Gregg Hollander, Vice President for Administration, and I conferred about another revision of Solel's website. I attended a meeting of the Construction Task Force, chaired by Larry Mason, joined by Phil Cohen, Ed Bederman, and Allan Litwack, as well as representatives of our architect and general contractor. Lisa Wasserman, Vice President for Finance, provided me with an opinion on financial issues pertaining to our construction project. Josh Lowitz, our Vice President for Lifelong Learning, explored with me the prospect of a 50th anniversary remembrance of Dr. Martin Luther King's speech from our pulpit that is just ahead in June of 2016. And I maintained regular contact with Harold Chizewer and Jerry Wolf, Co-Chairs of the Campaign for Solel.

You might think of us as a purposeful lot. Congregation Solel's vibrant tempo embodies all sorts of compelling narratives. I think of all of this activity as deeply embedded in our beginnings. Indeed, the burning spirit of our founders renews itself constantly in the thirteenth year of the new century. As we embark upon our fiftysixth year, our unbounded capacity for associating with our fellow congregants reaffirms our renowned vitality as a distinctive and historic Reform Jewish community.

Imagine Alexis de' Tocqueville re-appearing some 182 years after first touching ground in the United States. A knowledgeable guide has pointed the French traveler in the direction of Congregation Solel. The ensuing visit reaffirmed his faith in the enduring virtues of Americans associating with one another as a defining attribute of democracy.

I welcome the opportunity to talk with you, one-to-one, about your vision for Congregation Solel.

A Second Day of Rosh Hashanah Worship

Friday, September 6

Congregation Solel will conduct a second day of Rosh Hashanah worship on Friday, September 6th from 9:30 to 11:00 AM. The service will be in the chapel. Cards of admission are not required.

This turn – in keeping with our tradition of innovation in worship – arose from heartfelt sentiments expressed by congregants.

The Board of Directors, as well as our Rabbi and Cantor, played thoughtful roles in deliberating on the second day. Collectively we regard it as another benchmark in our history.

Our second-day worship service will include prayer, reflection, and Torah study. While our choir will not participate, Philip Orem will occupy his customary seat accompanying Cantor Glikin.

At the October 6th meeting of the Board of Directors – which congregants are always welcome to attend and make their voices heard – we shall assess the second day of Rosh Hashanah worship.

Rabbi Moffic's Corner

Most of it focuses on the sweetness of freedom, the imperative of our time, and the responsibility to tell the story of the Exodus to the next generation.

2. Write a gratitude journal. Writing about an event shapes the way we remember it. It helps us determine its meaning. We can apply this truth in so many ways.

Every night before bed, for example, I sit with my kids and ask them three things they are grateful for. Even if they had a tough day, focusing on the positive parts of the day reframes it. They often go to sleep with a laugh or smile.

3. Let time work its magic. Mark Twain famously said that "I've had a lot of worries in my life, most of which never happened." When something bad happens to us, we often feel as if it is the end of the world.

I see this quite frequently among my high school students if they get a low grade on a test. Yet, after a few days or weeks, the test is forgotten.

The same is often true with us. What seems awful now becomes manageable, or even positive, later. Perspective can change the meaning and relative significance of the past.

4. Write the story of which you want to be a part. A rabbinic mentor once told me to "make up a good story, a noble prevarication, about your congregation and tell it to anyone who will listen. Even if it's not true, after a few years, people will try to live up to it."

He captured an essential truth about people. We live up to the narratives we tell ourselves. We make decisions and act in certain ways because it fits into our story. If we change that story, we can change our lives.

A decision once thought of as a failure can become a learning experience. A painful ending to a relationship can become an experience when we learned about ourselves and what we need from a spouse or partner.

"Life," philosopher Soren Kierkegaard once said, "is lived forward and understood backward." The power to understand the backward part of lives lies within us. We can't change what happened, but we can change what it means. What we choose to remember helps shape who we decide to become.

Solel Trip to Russia/ Ukraine Being Planned

We are excited to announce that a Solel trip to Russia/ Ukraine is being planned for May 19-29, 2014. The trip will be lead by Cantor Vicky Glikin, who lived in Kiev until she was 13 years old. Three cities will be visited: St. Petersburg, Moscow, and Kiev. The trip will visit cultural sites, as well as sites of Jewish interest. Included amongst the cultural sites will be: the Hermitage in St. Petersburg, Red Square, the Tretyakov Gallery in Moscow, and St. Sophia Cathedral and the Golden Gate in Kiev. Of Jewish interest will be a visit to the Grand Choral Synagogue in St. Petersburg, Shabbat services, meeting with the Progressive Jewish community in Moscow, and a trip to Babi Yar in Kiev.

This trip is being laid out by Mitchell Slotnick, of Ridgebrook Travel, who planned our recent very successful trip to Israel. Preliminary estimates of the cost of the trip (based on 30 people) are $4000 per person, double occupancy, plus air of $1821. The single supplement would be $1800.

There will be an informational meeting at Solel on Monday, September 23 at 7:30 pm. If you are interested in learning more about the trip, please RSVP with the Solel office at (847)433-3555 or at soleloffice@solel.org. If you have urgent questions that need answers before the September 23 meeting, please call Cantor Glikin or email at vglikin@solel.org.

We are looking forward to this exciting, once-in-alifetime trip!

Rabbi Dov and Judith Taylor Return to Solel Weekend of Nov. 1

Please add this to your iPhones, Blackberries, other smartphones, and calendars. Dov Taylor, Rabbi Emeritus, will return to Solel, with his wife, Judith, for a Scholar in Residence weekend November 1-3. Topics will be announced in the October Pathfinder.

Rabbi Taylor will speak following Shabbat evening services Friday, November 1. His presentation will be followed by a festive Oneg Shabbat, including home baked sweets.

Saturday morning, Rabbi Taylor will conduct a class at 10:30 am. All are invited to stay for lunch. On Sunday morning, he will lead a discussion about current issues during which a light brunch will be served.

This promises to be a stimulating weekend and we look forward to welcoming the Taylors back to Solel. More details and pertinent reading materials will be available before November 1.

Global Zero For High School Students Meet at Solel September 29

Global Zero is the international movement for the elimination of nuclear weapons worldwide. Powered by a group of 300 leaders and experts who support our bold, step-by-step plan to eliminate all nuclear weapons by 2030, the relentless creativity, energy, and optimism of young people and half a million citizens worldwide, we're challenging the 20th century idea of basing national security on the threat of mass destruction.

We've spent years building a nonpartisan, international community of influential political, military, business, civic, and faith leaders – matched by a global grassroots movement. We've got a plan. The challenge now is getting world leaders to act on it. Young people all around the world play a huge role. Global Zero is the world's first post-Cold War generation. We offer opportunities for leadership, education, and personal and professional growth, and a unique chance to make a global impact. There are more than 150 chapters in 20 countries around the world.

If you're a university or high school student, take the first step and visit our website for more information on how to get involved.

Mazel Tov on Aspen Pasikov's Bat Mitzvah!

Aspen Pasikov, daughter of Barry and Diana Pasikov, will become a Bat Mitzvah on August 24, 2013. Aspen spent her summer at Camp Marimeta for Girls and is beginning 7th grade at Elm Place Middle School in Highland Park this fall. While preparing for her Bat Mitzvah, Aspen learned the importance of structuring her time to find a balance between school, ballet, tennis, socializing with friends, camp, and studying her Torah Portion and prayers. The key message Aspen learned from her Torah Portion (Ki Tavo) is that every action has consequences. Therefore, it is important to consider the impact of one behavior. As part of her Mitzvah Project, Aspen collected, donated, and delivered toys, food, and necessities for Children Memorial Hospital, Orphans of the Storm, and the Highland Park Food Pantry. Aspen feels that giving to others is a gift to one self, as knowing she has helped those less fortunate fills her with joy and happiness. In addition to sharing her Bat Mitzvah with her family and friends, Aspen is honored to be remembering Suzanne Moi, a beautiful little girl born in Paris, France in September of 1936, who was a Holocaust victim.

Daniel Greene Wins Book Prize from American Jewish Historical Society

Congratulations to Solel alumnus Daniel Greene, who completed his Jewish education at our Religious School. His book, The Jewish Origins of Cultural Pluralism: The Menorah Association and American Diversity (Indiana University Press, 2011) recently received the Saul Viener Book Prize from the American Jewish Historical Society.

The Jewish Origins of Cultural Pluralism follows a group of young Jewish Harvard students who in 1906 founded the Menorah Association, which advocated a pluralist America that would accommodate a thriving Jewish culture in mainstream American life.

Daniel Greene, son of longtime congregants Carol and Alan Greene, is Vice President for Research and Education at the Newberry Library in Chicago. Previously, he served as a historian at the United States Holocaust Memorial Museum.

Thank you to all who participated in the Refer A Friend Program! The best way to grow our Solel family is through word-of-mouth. The program was a success, thanks to you! We Honor our Campaign for Solel Donors

Throughout the course of the entire Campaign for Solel thus far, there has been an outpouring of love and support from members of our Solel family. The following list has been printed to honor all of our current and past members, clergy, and senior staff who saw the need for these important improvements to our spiritual home and stepped forward in support of Solel's future. These individuals have enabled us to create a beautiful new lounge and administrative suite, increase the size of our Endowment, and will allow for additional necessary improvements to Solel including a Highland Park-mandated sprinkler system to improve safety in our congregation, better accessibility, lighting and sound in the Sanctuary, Main Lounge and Social Hall and other key renovations to our Bima and other important spaces. These improvements will secure our future for generations to come.

Thank you to all who have participated. You honor us all through your commitment and passion for our shared spiritual home. The Campaign for Solel is a project for the whole Solel family.

Sunday, August 4 10:00 am - 11:00 am

The Solel Construction Zone will open its door for viewing. You and your family are encouraged to stop by.

Please meet in the Family Learning Center. Closed-toe footwear is required.

The end result -- completion date is 8/23/13 -will amount to a significant milestone in the history of our congregation. It is exciting to have an early look as our project advances.

Larry Mason, chair of our construction task force, will be on hand to help us understand this immense and complex project.

For more information, contact the synagogue office at (847) 433-3555 or soleloffice@solel.org.

Solel College Committees Seeks Names of Your Student

Each year Congregation Solel's college committee takes an active role in maintaining communication with students who are attending college or graduate school.

At three key intervals on the Jewish calendar -- the High Holidays, Hannukah, and Passover -- our college students receive a meaningful message and some Jewish goodies from Rabbi Moffic and Cantor Glikin.

Please send names and a complete US Mail address to soleloffice@solel.org. It would be helpful if the subject line of your message read "College student."

Rededication of our Congregation March 21-24, 2014

Congregation Solel is preparing to commemorate and celebrate.

In the early spring of 2014, the congregation will mark a significant benchmark in our history. Although Congregation Solel was incorporated in 1957, it took another six years before ground was broken on a parcel of land that our founders purchased along Clavey Road.

Congregation Solel will mark the fiftieth anniversary of its dedication with a weekend of memorable events scheduled for March 21-24, 2014.

Among our honored guests for the rededication weekend is a distinguished alumnus of our religious school. Martha Minow, Dean of Harvard Law School, will speak at 2 pm on March 23rd. In a recent address to the Central Conference of American Rabbis, she told the assembly – Rabbi Evan Moffic and Rabbi Emeritus Dov Taylor were in attendance – about the enduring influence of Congregation Solel upon her life.

Co-chairs of the rededication committee are Ross Erlebacher and Betsy Lassar. Committee members include Linda Chizewer, Avery Cohen, Susan Kaden, Holly Krakow, Adrienne Levin, and Arthur Segil.

Further details in future issues of the Pathfinder. Please mark your calendar today for this wonderful weekend.

Solel Participates in County-Wide Healthcare Survey

Recently I had eye surgery. I had good medical care. I understood the situation, was able to ask my doctor questions, understood post-operative instructions, as well as the directions on the eye drops prescribed for me and had a patient husband with a car, for which we could afford the gas to drive me to and from medical appointments.

Not everyone is so lucky. That's the reason that Lake County United (LCU), of which Congregation Solel is an active member, is researching the issue of access to quality medical care in Lake County.

Soon you will see tangible evidence of that commitment in the form of brief (one page) surveys. They will be available at Solel or through Solel's representative to the LCU steering committee, Meta L. Levin, meta.levin@comcast.net. Please take two minutes to complete and return them to the Solel office or to Meta before September 23, 2013.

Composed of both faith-based and secular organizations in the county, Lake County United is a nonpartisan community organizing entity that targets broad issues of concern to its member organizations. Solel's membership and participation is part of its historic commitment to social justice and directly connected to its membership and participation in Just Congregations, the congre- The survey is the first step in assessing the problem in gational organizing and social justice arm of the Reform Iewish movement.

A couple of years ago, Solel's Just Congregations Aging with Dignity Task Force partnered with a number of other LCU members to investigate options and resources for older residents who choose to age in their own homes.

In 2012, when Vista Health Care, a private entity that owns the only hospitals in the Waukegan area, asked the Illinois Hospital Review Board for permission to build a new facility in Lindenhurst, various community groups asked LCU to weigh in. Although LCU does not take a stand on such matters, members did do some research, quickly realizing that the wider issue is access to quality health care.

Recognizing that this is an issue that affects everyone, LCU formed a working committee, composed of representatives from a number of member organizations, including Solel. Our research showed that access to health care is at once an economic, educational, and employment issue.

We proposed doing a limited survey to better understand the scope of the problem and approached the Lake County Health Department (LCHD) for help. The LCHD was thrilled. Our project tied in with a countywide survey on access to health care that they were planning. By distributing the survey through LCU members, the LCHD could get information from people representing a wide range of socio-economic, ethnic, and educational levels within the county.

From LCU's standpoint, we had access to the LCHD's expertise, especially their ability to pre-test the questions for bias and translate them into Spanish.

Lest you wonder what this has to do with you, think about it. Should there be an outbreak of some illness, it would easily spread via those who do not have access to health care or who cannot understand the instructions given them by medical professionals, do not have the money to fill prescriptions or cannot afford to take time off of work while they recuperate. We are talking about people who are Caucasian, African American, Hispanic, Native American, Asian, and any other ethnic derivation you can imagine, and, yes, even Jewish. They include those who have a language barrier, poor education, or physical or mental handicaps.
